March 2009

Dear Customer,

We wish to inform you that we will be marketing ERA Technology Ltd as Cobham Technical Services from the 23rd March 2009.

ERA Technology Ltd is part of Cobham plc which has annual revenues approaching £1.5 billion and employs 12,500 people on five continents. This change has been made to help customers and suppliers around the world better understand the breadth of the capabilities that we and our sister business units can offer as part of Cobham.

Same people, same great products and services with a new look

The people, products and services you know will remain the same, but the name and our brand image will be updated as part of Cobham's recently announced evolution to a single unified global identity. We will use the identifier 'ERA Technology' and a new Cobham logo (as above) which makes the relationship with our parent company much clearer. To help make the change easy to understand, our new literature and stationery will include the following statement:

ERA Technology Limited trading as Cobham Technical Services

The legal entity will remain as ERA Technology Ltd. Please continue to address all purchase orders and make cheques and other remittances to ERA Technology Ltd. Our website and e-mail addresses will be updated shortly but all of our existing contact details can still be used.

Of course, we welcome any questions or feedback you have on these changes and encourage you to visit www.cobham.com/technicalservices in the coming months, to find out more about the range of distinctive technologies and services we have to offer.

We look forward to working with you in 2009 and beyond.

Yours sincerely,

Paul McCarter
General Manager
